Twinning sign is unveiled

STAPLEFORD twinning committee survey their handiwork after putting up the signs proclaiming the village's links with the French town of Villedomer. Two signs were put up on Saturday at each end of the village on the London Road as they prepare to celebrate the first anniversary of the twinning.

Stapleford are a little behind their French counterparts who already have twinning signs. The English signs, costing more than £50, were paid for by the twinning committee and the parish council.

The committee are planning a coach trip to Villedomer next Easter and a visit by a group of village teenagers later in the year.
